Every Human And Animal Is Entitled To Fair Play

Man's welfare depends on animals in many ways. We keep them as pets. We depend upon them for much of our food. We use them for beasts of burden. We employ them in our recreation.

Animals provide us with leather, wool, bone, and ivory, also bristles for brushes, fat for soap, and so forth. Obviously, it is to man's selfish advantage to look after the welfare of all of the animals.

All next week, Marin County Humane Society joins with hundreds of other humane organizations in the United States in celebration of "Be Kind To Animals Week." The week is highlighting man's dependency upon animals and man's responsibility for their welfare.

Reactions of humans toward cruelty to animals is usually violent. Let a person abuse a cat or dog and the human observers react with great revulsion. Recently a case of two persons cruelly over-riding horses on one of our bridle trails brought storms of protest and demands for prosecution from those who witnessed the act.

Sometimes the lack of understanding on the part of humans toward animals results in cruelty. The cases of the picking up of the "so-called" abandoned baby seals resulted in long hours of suffering for the creatures while proper food was sought.

Each year unthinking acts result in baby deer being picked up in the mistaken impression that a doe has abandoned her fawn. The chances of these little animals surviving after being so disturbed, is less than 50 per cent.

Persons also react to regulations put upon animals to protect humans as well as the animals. Usually this is a reaction against someone taking responsibility for an animal which has come into a person's possession. Animals need the protection of man but no one segment of the population has the sole responsibility; it is the job of all of us.

Kindness to animals is a humane education project. Humane societies are engaged in this educational job so that persons can know and enjoy animals. It is the hope of the society in Marin County that the idea of justice can be firmly planted in the minds of adults and children. Then they can comprehend that every sensitive thing, be it human or animal, is entitled to fair play - which is just another name for humane treatment.

Independent-Journal:

In reply to the letter written by a part-time resident of Bolinas, Mrs. James Jenkins, and published April 20, "In anticipation of the coming water board election" on May 5th - I feel as well, if not better qualified, than Mrs. Jenkins in stating the facts.

My "roots" in this community go far deeper than those of Mrs. Jenkins, inasmuch as it was my family who subdivided the portion of Bolinas known as Granda Vista, prior to my birth in Bolinas some 70 years ago. We supplied the tract and the village with water until Sherman Smith, Sr., took over the village water supply, followed by the present system. . . .

Our interest has always been for the progress and welfare of the community. Therefore it seems to me that maintaining two water boards to supply approximately 300 customers is ridiculous. It has

Mrs. Jenkins speaks of the "careful management which has since made this service possible with little change in tax or water rates." True, keeping taxes down has been realized, but how about the long term interest in the bonds which do not mature until 1970? By that time practically the equivalent of the price of the bonds will have been spent in interest. . . . Without doubt someone profits, but — is it the tax pay-

Following the disasterous winter of '56-'57, when our water supply was destroyed by land slides, a spirit of blessed unity existed. The entire community co-operated in restoring our water system. Both boards worked together and the men of the two communities contributed their time and efforts, achieving marvelous results. . . .

In Community Center meetings the water problems have been openly discussed and future plans considered. So, in a meeting held two years ago it was decided to ask for resulted in expense and dupli- an election and reorganization. Unanimous appreciation was expressed for the services which the gentlemen mentioned by Mrs. Jenkins, had so generously rendered. BUT we are facing a new era, and it seemed reasonable that new members be considered. In a well-attended meeting > of the Community Center three men were named as candidates. Two of them were born and raised in Bolinas; the third is a well known architect, who, since childhood has been a summer resident, and is today a property owner and legal resident of Bolinas. . . . their eligibility was challenged by the existing board. It was taken to the Superior Court of Marin, which ordered their names placed upon the ballot.

The "incumbent board" refused to do so, and the matter was taken to the State Supreme Court, with the resultant ruling that the board was violating the law in refusing to allow the candidates to run, and the voters the chance to decide who their directors should be.

Now, two years later, the same names are on the ballot for an election on May 5. This cannot truthfully be termed "a sudden mysterious interest in control of the Bolinas Public Utility District." In fact, two years of waiting and over 10 years without an election seems a long time.

In regard to Tom Barfield (who is the capable president of our Community Center, Inc.), whatever action he has taken has been in that capacity. He has no personal interest, beyond that of a good citizen. . . .

We who are so fortunate as to be residents of this community should work together in harmony. If it is not possible to see "eye to eye," most assuredly it is unnecessary to be bitter and uncooperative, Reasonable debate and discussion can solve all problems.

versy over the federal high- national average of $975,000. way program.

That is how much the state would lose in fiscal 1961 if Congress does not find more money for the program. It is the largest total of all the

The problem will be discussed by the House Public Works Committee during hearings starting Tuesday.

The financial roadblock is known as the Byrd amendment. It specifies that federal money for paying state highway bills must come out of a separate Highway Trust Fund. Highway user taxes such as those on gasoline and tires go into the trust fund.

LAST YEAR Congress suspended the Byrd amendment for fiscal 1959 and 1960. This enabled the federal government to go outside the trust fund for highway money.

But the Byrd amendment affects fiscal 1961. The Bureau of Public Roads ordinarily would make fiscal 1961 apportionments this July. But the trust fund is so short, the bureau says it cannot promise states any money for construction of the national system of interstate and defense high-

Interstate highways, as opposed to other roads, are those that connect major centers of the nation and are considered vital to the national defense. The federal government pays 90 per cent of the construction cost of interstate highways and the states the other 10 per cent. On most other types of roads, the states and Uncle Sam split costs 50-50.

CONGRESS IN 1956 authorized the 41,000-mile interstate system. It set 1969 as the target date for completion. Estimated cost of the system is $40 billion.

California is slated to build 2,135 miles of the interstate system at a total cost of $3,-

> Between 1956 and April 1, 1959, California had completed 120.8 miles of interstate highway and 148 connecting bridges. The federal government's cost was $69,005,000 and the state's $20,221,000.

The threatened shut-off of federal funds for fiscal 1961 would undoubtedly delay construction of the interstate system and perhaps halt it altogether in some states.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER in January recommended raising gasoline taxes again to put new money into the trust fund. Democrats are loathe to do that. But the alternative is to suspend the Byrd amendment again, and go outside the trust fund for highway money. Since almost every dollar now on hand or coming into the Treasury is spoken for, raiding of the general fund would amount to deficit financing.

Democrats currently are discussing a plan to sugarcoat such deficit financing by describing it as a diversion of other highway-type taxes into the trust fund.

Things are moving fast up in Sacramento these days. Here are a few items of interest you may have missed:

Legislative action has been completed on Assemblyman Richard H. McCollister's two bills giving state tidelands to Mill Valley and to the County of Marin.

The two bills have been ap-

BAY AREA RAPID Transit directors got on their high horse when a bill was introduced proposing they be paid $50 per committee meeting, as well as the $50 per directors meeting they now get. The directors said they had not been informed of the bill and oppose it.

Marinites will remember him as the Contra Costa Taxpayers Association official who met in Martinez one afternoon with a committee of the Marin County Board of Freeholders. He sent them a bill for $50. The Marin supervisors wouldn't pay the bill, so the unpaid freeholders had to dig the $50 for Morrison out of their own pockets.

And the President's answer didn't take long. Yet the question and answer threw across the room a somber shadow hardly noticeable as the reporters pressed ahead with other questions of their own.

For in Iraq--and what may happen to it and the Middle East later — lies the possibility of one of America's greatest cold war defeats.

JUST THE DAY before, Allen Dulles, head of the Central Intelligence Agency, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: Communists are in almost complete control in Iraq.

If they are, then it would seem in a short time they should be able to take over. If they delay, it will be because of these two things:

1. That Moscow, for reasons of its own, will order the take over delayed.

That the United States and its allies can find some way and some policy to prevent it. Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the committee, said the situation is not hopeless if such a policy can be found. But none is in sight now.

Could Eisenhower use these a Communist takeover from within? It seems unlikely.

IF THE REDS take over in Iraq, which is completely shut off from border contact with the Soviet Union by its neighbors, the Soviets would have their first firm foothold in the Middle East. It would be a colossal disaster for the West.

Six Pastors Serve Marin City Church In Experimental 'Multiple Ministry'

Hub Seminary Students Fill Varied Roles

By LESLIE LUERGAN

The Community Presbyterian Church in Marin City has an experimental form of ministry which may solve the problem pastors have faced for decades: how to be all things to all men -teacher, leader, preacher. comforter and friend.

The more complex society grows, the more roles added to the pastor's life-counselor, psychologist, educator.

The pastor of this Marin City church is actually a hydra, or "multiple minister," composed of six students from San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

"We all work together as one pastor," explained Harold Hudspeth, who is responsible for Sunday sermons and assists with administrative duties. "Decisions are made with the accord of all six of us, and the chairman of the week carries them out."

CLOSE RELATION

Hudspeth is a graduate of Westmont College in Santa Barbara and San Francisco State and has had several years experience in the youth and church school programs. His sermons, often sharpened by . his spontaneous humor, have brought him into a close relationship with the Marin City congregation.

Organized 15 years ago, the church existed as a community church until 1956, when it was taken into the Redwoods Presbytery and came under the aid of the Presbyterian National Missions. Non-segregated, it presents many of the educational and cultural activities of the community. The congregation is as enthusiastic about this experimental form of ministry as are the field work advisers and

TRAIN TEACHERS

Resource leaders, responsible for training church school teachers, are Judy Cramer and Marilyn Taylor, both first year M A students at the seminary Miss Cramer is from Milwaukee and attended Carroll College in Waukesha, Wis. Miss Taylor is from Milton, Ore., and received her B.A. from Westmont College. Both want to enter some phase of Christian education after completing their second year at the seminary.

Together they assist Wesley Lachman Jr. as advisers in the Westminster Fellowship (youth Wesley Lachman is from San Francisco and a graduate of Stanford University with a A.B. in psychology. This is his first year at the seminary and he is primarily interested in youth counseling.

"I get to know the most interesting people," confided Melvin Unruh, referring to his pastoral calling. An easy, outgoing temperament and a genuine sympathy for people qualifies Unruh for his responsibilities in the "multiple ministry." A graduate of Whitworth College in Spokane, he received his call to the ministry after having established himself in busi-

SCOUT TROOP

The Marin City Scout Troop is sponsored by the church under the supervision of a Scout committee, A few years ago the troop reached its peak for number of merits won and high scouting standards.

It is the intention of the newly chosen scout master, Earley Cobb, student at the Junior College of Marin, to help the boys surpass the troop's former record.

Cobb is reorganizing the troop with the supervisory assistance of student pastor Paul Pearson. Scouting is the phase of the multiple ministry for and universities in 13 countries which Pearson is responsible. He is a senior at the seminary awarded by the World Council and a graduate of the Univer- of Churches, the council's head- Baptist Church of Mill Valley sity of Washington in Seattle as well as Whitworth College, where he received his B.S. in

PROFILE OF THE WEEK—Marin County Fire Chief Charles Reilley has a history of heroism equalled by few—and no one else in Marin. He holds both the Disringuished Service Cross and the French Croix de Guerre.

Extraordinary Heroism Under Fire

County Fire Chief Charles Reilly Received Two Medals For World War I Exploits

By JANE LOWREY

The young soldier braved a barrage of enemy bullets during an advance on the Belgium city of Audenarde in 1918 to obtain valuable information on destroyed bridges. Voluntarily accompanying a patrol on the mission, he helped fight off an enemy patrol three times its size.

He captured a German spy who was trying to escape and on the same day saved the life of his captain, who was about to be fired upon, by forcing a German sniper to cover.

Nine days later Sgt. Charles Reilley, who had enlisted a year earlier in Jumbo Town, Colo., swam the Escaut River despite the presence of enemy snipers on the opposite bank. He then tied a rope to an enemy barrel bridge, thereby making a crossover for the infantry.

For his extraordinary heroism, Sgt. Reilley was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix de Guerre from the French government.

MANY THINGS have happened to Sgt. Reilley since that ceremony near Paris in 1919. One of the most important things, was becoming Marin County Fire Chief, a position he has held for eight years.

But to this day his war experiences leave an indelible mark.

"My background won't allow me to hunt," he declared in untmost sincerity. "To kill is to kill. I have nothing against the sport, I just can't."

However, he once had an intense desire to be a professional boxer. As a lightweight, he tried making a litte extra money when he was 19. "But I didn't have anything left by the time I paid the doctor," he said with a laugh.

HE FOUGHT FOUR and six round matches at Tonopah and Goldfield, Nev., sometimes practicing with Jack Dempsey, who captured the world's heavyweight crown just a few years later. "He wasn't any champion then though," said Chief Reilley.

"I was advised I'd never be a champion and was good enough to quit," he remarked.

But his physique still appears to be that of an athlete.

This facet of Chief Reilley's life was concurrent with his apprenticeship as an electrician, a trade he followed for 20 years before turning to fire prevention.

Chronologically, Chief Reilley was born 62 years ago in Victor, Colo. His parents, Charles Sr. and Mary Ellen Reilley moved to Victor about the time of their marriage in 1894. Charles Jr. was the second born of six children.

WHEN HE WAS 10, his family went to Goldfield, Nev. on the second train that pulled into the area," he recalled. Goldfield, like Victor, was a gold mining town where father Reilley could mine.

But he died the following year. Three children had succumbed to diptheria in Colorado and another was soon lost to typhoid fever.

As a youngster, Chief Reilley delivered papers after school to help support his mother and brother, William, who was 10 years younger. (William now resides in Viroqua, Wis.) He tried to play baseball during his school days, "but had neither time nor opportunity."

He had to leave school at 15 and started the electrician's apprenticeship soon afterward. His daily earnings of two dollars were deposited in the family treasury.

Upon completion of the four year apprenticeship, young Reilley worked a short time for Vanadium Corp. of America in Colorado before enlisting in the military service.

HE WENT to boot camp at Camp (Fort) Lewis, Wash., and was shipped overseas shortly afterward. Most of his stint was spent in France with the 316th Combat Engineers, a unit of the 91st Division, but he was in Belgium during campaigns and the Armistice signing.

General John Pershing, Supreme Commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, presented his Distinguished Service Cross. The medal is awarded only for combat, while the Congressional Medal of Honor can be given for other types of outstanding feats, Chief Reilley explained.

"As far as I know I'm the only Distinguished Service Cross holder in the county," he said. "And I know of only one Congressional Medal of Honor winner." Recipients of either are eligible for membership in the Legion of Valor, a national organization with a membership around 600.

AFTER THE VICTORY, Sgt. Reilley, who spoke French with some fluency, acted as a "billiting officer," going ahead and seeking lodging for troops and officers entering France from Belgium. He was returned to Jumbo Town and discharged in October, 1919.

He went back to Nevada, working as an electrician for West End Mining Co. at Tonopah until 1923, when he came to California. He was employed briefly in San Francisco, where he met Alice Fountain, the future Mrs. Reilley. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Fountain of Keatchie, La., Miss Fountain had come to the Bay Area three years earlier and found work as a sales clerk in a San Francisco department store.

The two were married in Reno on St. Patrick's Day, 1923.

THE BRIDEGROOM took a job with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in Vacaville and two years later switched to the payroll of Radio Corporation of America at Point Reyes Station. Chief Reilley said RCA was generating its own power at Marconi near Marshall, before moving to Point Reyes. The corporation decided to switch from direct to alternating current, which was furnished by PG&E and asked for a man to help them in the changeover.

Living in Point Reyes Station, Reilley joined the volunteer fire department, little realizing it was the first step in an eventual second career.

When World II broke out, Chief Reilley tried to enlist in each of the armed forces only to be told that his "work at RCA was more important than bringing him into the service."

As the years progressed, so did his tension with the RCA position, which kept him on the move between Seattle and Los Angeles. As fate would have it, his physician suggested a change in jobs, so Reilley left his trade in 1945 to try for a fire warden's spot at Point Reyes.

He became a Sheriff's deputy five years later. But his dislike for carrying a gun, a carryover from war days, helped make him receptive when the fire chief's spot was offered in 1951.

AS COUNTY fire chief, he spends the greater part of his time in administrative duties. He is charged with fire protection in unincorporated areas throughout Marin and has 38 full-time employees and 34 pieces of equipment for that end.

His office is at Woodacre, but he is also responsible for two lookout stations and 10 substations, plus another scheduled for completion in early summer.

Chief Reilley expresses his zeal for the fire chief's position by his statement: "I love the hills and want to keep them beautiful. If I can be a small part of the county as it exists and enjoy the beautiful spots, that is my ambition."

HE IS A past president of the Marin County Firemen's Assn. board of directors and a member of the Masonic Lodge of Tonopah, Nev., in addition to the Legion of Valor. He is also a Giants fan.

Besides hiking around Marin's countrysides and tending his garden, Chief Reilley finds great pleasure in reading. Sometimes he even awakens during the night and reads a few chapters.

"Pal" and "Toy," his Belgium Shepherd and Siamese cat, keep the chief company since Mrs. Reilley's death in January. His home, a four-room cottage at Point Reyes Station is what Chief Reilley describes as "pretty much of a do-it-yourself" job.

Reflecting on his career as fire chief, Chief Reilley admits it, like his old electricians job, has a certain amount of tension, "but the change was a radical one and I've never regretted making it."

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania Audio Engineer

Last week's article (the 15th in a series) was a fairly complete description, in layman's terms, of all the components used in a Stereo Hi-Fi home music system. The new series, starting with this one, will describe the specific high quality components normally used to make up the Custom Home Music System.

This week will be Electro-Voice Week at our store. We will be displaying and demonstrating the Electro-Voice Loudspeaker systems and stereo cartridge. The following is quoted from the new Electro-Voice Stereo Guide, "Whether music lover hi - fi enthusiast, or professional expert, you will find in the ensuing pages the facts you want to know. In stereophonic sound, music comes fantastically alive. It is rich, full, different. And for the first time, you hear two new dimensions in music: direction and depth. The sound is so vivid you can almost see the musicians and feel their presence. Your ears will be able to distinguish where each instrument and voice comes from - left, right, or in the center."

Electro-Voice has recently introduced their new line of Ultra Compact Wide-Range speaker systems, and we are demonstrating them in our sound room. The Regal IA, 13½" deep, 14" high, 25" wide, is a full 2-way speaker system consisting of a powerful 12-inch bass speaker and a treble range horn tweeter. The units are housed in a specially designed cabinet. The frequency response is flat from 37 to 18,000 cycles, truly a fullrange speaker system in a small enclosure. The Regals are available in mahogany, walnut, or limed oak and the price for the complete system is only $103.00.

The Regal III is the deluxe version of the above system and includes a 3-way speaker system, 12-inch bass speaker, a mid-range horn, and treble-range horn. The Regal III comes in the same finishes and is priced at $147.50. These systems have been designed to provide the finest reproduction possible in a modest size. Come in and hear them. While listening to a demonstration, get your free copy of the beautiful color illustrated 26-page stereo guide by Electro-Voice.

While there, see and hear the Electro-Voice new Wolverine series of 8-inch and 12-inch speakers priced at $18.00 and $19.50, and available as complete systems in our shelf model cabinets for as low as $34.50.

Big Changes On North Shore

North Shore Line Adds Trimmings-Not Without Several Mishaps

Editor's note: This is an other in the series on the history of railroads in Marin and the North Bay area by the late A. Bray Dickinson, Tomales historian, whose manuscript has been transcribed by Roy G. Graves. Today's chapter concerns the conversion of the former North Pacific Coast, purchased in 1902 by a syndicate which promptly renamed it the North Shore Railroad.

By A. BRAY DICKINSON

The barn-like terminal structure at Sausalito evidently shocked the aesthetic sensibilities of North Shore officialdom, for the eight-year old depot was immediately demolished and another station building erected, including a new ferry slip. However, the new covered platforms extending out between the tracks for passage of those getting on and off trains did not offer complete protection from weather that the old train shed had provided.

THE NEW DEPOT housed the train dispatcher's office. All dispatching was done by telegraph, but a telephone system connected shops, power house, and all suburban stations for use of officers and operating men. In addition to the automatic blocksignal system there were three disc signals stationed on the legs of the Y-track at San Anselmo, controlled by the station agent who could give right-of-way to a train on any one of the three legs of the Y.

A mechanical interlocking plant was installed at Mill

Valley Junction to control trains coming off the branch line on to the main line. Another interlocking plant at Sausalito controlled switching in the Sausalito yards.

The new company started an ambitious ship-building program by ordering a new side-wheel steamer from the Risdon Iron Works and the North Shore Company, with their friends, gathered for the launching ceremony.

After workmen had knocked out the last block and the hull started to move down the ways, Miss Frances Martin broke the customary bottle of champagne over the bow and christened the steamer "Cazadero." However, after slowly moving about 20 feet, the Cazadero stuck in her cradle and refused to budge.

THIS MISHAP delayed completion about 30 days and when the vessel was finally dragged into the water she listed badly and an excessive amount of concrete ballast had to be poured into the hull to make her float on an even

The Cazadero always presented an ugly appearance. The main deck was built high amidships and sloped off toward each end, so that she always seemed to be heeled over when viewed from either broadside.

She never approached the designed speed of 16 knots. so the contemplated "fastest ferry on the bay" turned out to be rather a "dud."

A second steamer ordered from the Risdon Iron Works was a specially designed stern-wheel car float, embodying some advanced ideas of William Rank, which included a fish-head bow for docking within a regular ferry slip.

THIS VESSEL was launched from the Oakland yards of W. A. Boole and Son on February 1, 1903, and christened "Lagunitas" by Miss Vera de Sabla in the presence of hundreds of guests.

After going into service, the Lagunitas, with an unsheathed wooden bottom, provided many free lunches for salt water bugs and worms, and before long the boat was eaten up by vermin of the sea.

The steamer Sausalito was changed to an oil burner. Railway tracks were pulled up from her main deck and she became exclusively a passenger ferry.

The company further undertook a complete overhaul and modernization of its steam road. The old NPC line above San Anselmo was practically rebuilt.

supply of 30,000 new ties Millerton and Duncans Mills. channel of the estuary bridge The entire road was reballasted so it would support the heavy engines to be released from suburban runs after completion of the electric division-engines that had never been on the Cazadero line.

MANUALLY - OPERATED semaphores erected at each station allowed agents to signal a clear track for approaching trains. "Ticklers" were placed before tunnels to warn tainment of near danger when riding on top of freight trains.

Kinks were taken out of the line, realignments made, and bridges rebuilt.

To hasten this program of modernization, three secondhand freight engines were purchased in the East, Nos. 31, 33 and 40. The first two weighed about 30 tons each, and either could yank 30 loaded cars over White's Hill..

The third locomotive, No. 40, was somewhat smaller. All were of the 2-8-0 type.

One major job was building the Bothin cut-off and a 3200-foot, low-level tunnel.

This stretch of new road, 2.64 miles in length, did away with a 4.74 mile climb over White's Hill and a great deal of lovely scenery at the same

The Bothin tunnel was bored to broad gauge size, as the North Shore Company planned to extend its electric line to Woodacre and possibly as far as Point Reyes Station.

The old NPC locomotive No. 6, leased to the Dollar Lumber Company, had been returned to the road and renumbered "22." This engine now was used to operate compressors for the pneumatic drills used in boring the tunnel.

The new cut-off was not opened to traffic until Dec. 4,

MEANWHILE, another considerable piece of realignment had been completed on Tomales Bay. The old road originally made a broad sweep across the mouth of Key's Es-Sixty-pound steel rails re- tuary upon a long wooden placed old iron ones and a trestle. Now a fill was put in on a more direct line, north went into the road between from Ocean Roar, and the ed with a short trestle.

> However, winter floods tore out this trestle, so it became necessary to replace it with a steel bridge. Several other wooden trestles were replaced with steel structures in the months to follow.

The company's steam shovel worked for weeks at the south approach of Tomales tunnel to get out dirt and rock for the Ocean Roar fill. After finishing the job the shovel was sent to the Russian River to dredge out some gravel.

WHEN TIME CAME to leave, crewmen forgot that the steel crane and bucket on this machine had to be lowered for traveling. This carelessness brought on a bad accident. As the work-train entered the north portal of Tomales tunnel some huge roof beams were torn loose by the shovel's projecting crane to crash down on a flat car loaded with men.

One man was killed and several badly injured.

MARIN ET CETERA

By Harry Craft

Ladies, Don't Go Reading This; You Wouldn't Be Interested, See!

RIGHT OFF THE BAT, you ladies may as well not bother reading this today. Why don't you just skip it and go on to the next page?

Billy Shannon. Jim Gilmartin did it sometime ago and I don't have all the facts of his career at hand. I did come into a loan of Billy's personal

I know you read me more than the men do—the Opinion Poll says so and don't think I am ungrateful. But it ought to balance out better.

MEN, I've got to do something to pick up your interest. I can't compete with Jim Gilmartin, Jack Connolly or Jack Hanley. There's nothing I could write on sports that they couldn't do better. Except—maybe I could say a little something here about Billy Shannon.

Billy Shannon was a pretty fair boxer before the turn of the century. For a while he was lightweight amateur boxing champion of the Pacific Coast. He was clever with his dukes and a good hitter.

Later he turned professional but was so constructed that making his weight class was torture for him, so he gave up the game early and turned trainer. He became boxing instructor for the Los Angeles Athletic Club for a time and then set up his own training quarters in the West End section of San Rafael.

SHANNON'S VILLA, as it was called, came to be the leading training spot in this part of the country and housed at different times some of the greatest fighters in the world.

This is no attempt to profile

Billy Shannon. Jim Gilmartin did it sometime ago and I don't have all the facts of his career at hand. I did come into a loan of Billy's personal scrapbook on famous fighters and a number of pictures of the characters who frequented his Villa. But the latter are unidentified by name. Many of them are of a type—caps on backward, turtle-necked sweaters and flattened noses. Billy's own proboscis showed the results of many a stormy scuffle.

I had hoped to tie in this material with facts and dates someday but it may be a long time and I'm not sure Connie Manning of the Lighthouse Trading Post will let me keep it until then.

Anyway, here's an early day newspaper account of one of Billy's unscheduled Marin conflicts. The clipping is undated, name of publication is unknown though it appears to be local.

"Billy Shannon, the popular proprietor of Shannon's Villa, had an experience yesterday with that $500 mule of his that he won't forget for a while, or a least until he can sit straight on a chair. You see, it happened something like this:

"Billy's mule, which was running around in the back yard, got out and the faithful watchdog took it upon himself to make a prodigal son of the mule—or a sonofagun, or something, so he went out and chased him back into the yard.

"The unusual noise brought Billy on the scene and he found the dog still running the mule—the dog had likely been kicked and was mad.

"Billy saw at once that something had to be done, so he rushed in between the two animals and made a grab for the dog, and in so doing turned half way round, when the mule got in his favorite stunt on Billy—about midway up and to the rear. Billy eats now standing up and says...he will sell the mule for half price, as he don't like mules nohow!"

So much for Billy Shannon and sparring partner. You see, ladies — I told you this wouldn't interest you.

Next time may be you'll believe me.

There Was This Old Model 'A'

Now They're A 'Class A' Model Of Efficiency And Thoroughness

By LARRY LOVETT

May 2 is designated Fire Service Day, "when fire departments tell their story to the public."

But to the 4,000 people in the 1,100 homes of the Alto Richardson Bay Fire District, their fire department does a bang up job of telling its story on a door to door basis on a year round schedule.

Not too well known outside of its own territory, the Alto Richardson Bay Fire District is an irregularly shaped area of unincorporated territory which includes Alto and "the strip" on the west side of US 101 past Sabella's, all of Strawberry including the new $5,000,000 Golden Gate Baptist Seminary property, Bayview Heights, Bel Aire and intervening territory.

VETERAN fire chief Carl O. Heynen, Jr., says that this represents three square miles of territory with an assessed valuation of $5,250,000 at the present time.

"One of our highly important pieces of equipment," Heynen notes, "is a card file which lists every piece of property in the district, its owner, occupant if it is improved, and telephone number. What's more, we constantly recheck this list and call at the homes to keep residents informed as to who we are, how to reach us and also keep them fully informed on regulations governing outdoor fires."

Heynen talks very little about fire loss records, because it's like putting a jinx on the department. But it is well known that fire loss in the district has been just about as low as it's possible to thing under construction at get.,

THE DEPARTMENT had its origin in 1942 as a civil defense group as a part of the Alto Improvement Club, but with no equipment. Its chief was "Clint" Thoney whose sons are now Mill Valley builders.

The department began to take shape in 1945 when it purchased a Ford Model "A" truck from the Muir Woods Park Improvement Club and Joe Ennis became chief.

A major step came the following year when the late Mrs. May Deffebach made a generous gift of the department's present site at 46 Shell Road and the building program started which has never stopped.

THERE IS always some-

the spotless firehouse.

Heynen, formerly a Sausalito resident, joined the department in 1948 under chief Paul Berger and the following year was named to the top spot which he holds today.

"By that time," Heynen recalls, "we had formed the Alto Volunteer Firemen's Association. We bought an ex-forestry department truck with a $500 down payment raised by popular subscription. Monthly payments were raised by card parties and other social events plus cooperation from the Larkspur department which made funds available to use from the famous Rose Bowl dances."

The truck was paid of in 1949.

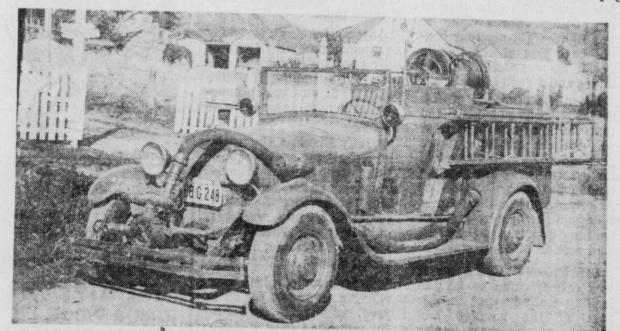

THE DISTRICT was growing rapidly in size and importance by that time and it was decided to incorporate to free the trustees from liability. A temporary group of directors was formed consisting of Heynen, Walter L. Harten, William R. Kounter, Theron Halleck, Rollin Q. Todd and attorney William O. Weissich.

Halleck is still with the department as a lieutenant.

At a succeeding election, Heynen was elected chief, with David Maciel, secretary and Halleck, treasurer. Directors named were John Klein, John W. Polacchi and James Rhoades.

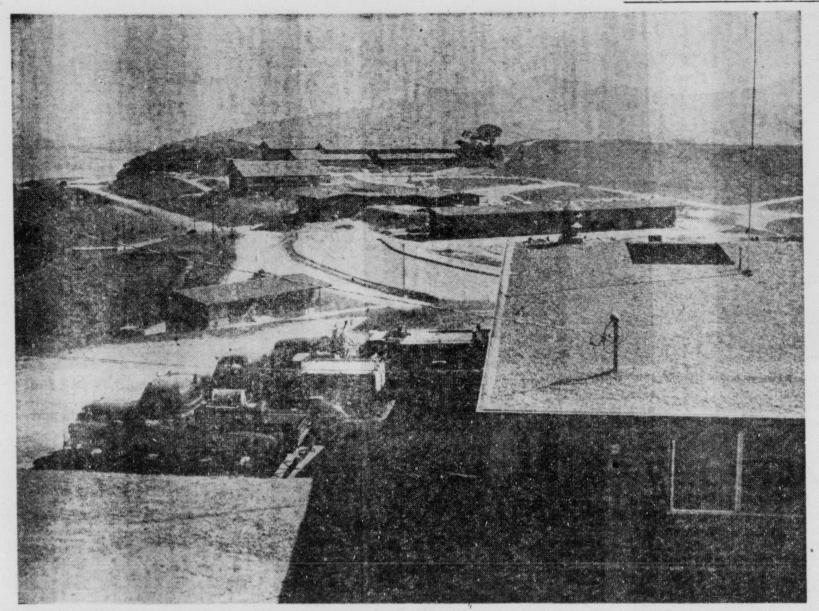

GROWTH AND progress continued rapidly, Heynen recalls. The following year, the firemen acquired another truck by raising money through a succession of social events. But the biggest step

Cont. from preceding page came in 1952 when the directors decided to hire a full time man.

"It was to be financed by a contribution of $6 per house," Heynen says, "but that was only partially successful. So rather than do without the man, the firemen dug up the $2,400 balance necessary for the year."

Things were growing too fast for the limited facilities of the association.

IN 1953, the idea of forming a district was formulated principally by Sidney L. Chapin who today is chairman of the district board and is chairman of the Alto Sanitary District board as well.

"In each of the major areas, Alto, Strawberry and Bel Aire," Heynen relates, "we started circulating petitions to get the minimum of 50 signatures which we obtained easily. So the Richardson Bay Fire District came into being October 5, 1954 with Chapin, Elmer R. Smith and William L. Cirby named by the supervisors as district commissioners."

The same three men have performed so successfully during the past decade that they are still the commissioners.

BUT THUS FAR, the district had no income, so in 1955, the district voted 288 to 55 to tax itself at the rate of 60 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Today, that tax has increased to 68 cents.

The same year, the volunteers purchased the former Alto Wye market building which was to be moved with the construction fo the new Alto overpass. The building was moved to its present location where it has been remodeled from time to time always with department labor and often with surplus material under Heynen's guidance.

"We soon saw that the district name must be changed," Heynen notes, "so we became the Alto Richardson Bay Fire District. And with the formation of the district, insurance rates dropped 60 per cent."

"THE VOLUNTEERS consist of seven officers and 18 men," Heynen notes. "These are members of the volunteers' corporation and with the exception of myself, serve without pay. The district," he continued, "employs five full time paid firemen in addition to the chief."

One of the major developments in recent years came as a result of the huge Golden Gate Baptist Seminary development on Strawberry Point.

"This was in our area and we wanted to give the best possible protection," Heynen said. "At the same time, the seminary wanted protection, although legally they could demand tax exemption."

But the district and the sem-Cont. on next page

"The seminary is voluntarily paying the district what it would normally pay on a tax basis," Heynen declared. "It is partly in cash and partly as a credit from the fire station construction."

THE NEW STATION has space for four pieces of equipment and has quarters for a staff of three permanent men. In addition, it has separate space for two student firemen who will be trained by the district. It has complete living facilities including kitchen and dayroom.

"WE HAVE A group of dedicated volunteers here," Heynen asserts. "They receive no pay of any kind and meet here on the first Wednesday of every month."

In response to a question, Heynen said, "We appreciate the help that untrained want to give at fires. But," he said, "we hope they will refrain from stepping in due to insurance problems, possibility of injury and most of all, due to the possibility of doing the wrong thing."

But the volunteers are open for recruits, he hastened to add. "Anyone who wants to help is more than welcome at any meeting of the volunteers."

A Glorious May Day Celebration

On May 1, 1909, a ceremony was held at Kentfield on the occasion of a ground breaking for a new stadium. Some 4,000 people jammed Kentfield to witness the event. Mrs. Adaline E. Kent presented the land to the people of Marin to be used as a recreation area.

Supervisor George E. Bennett, Superior Judge T. J. Lenmon and Senator Martinelli started the program off with addresses, and then Mrs. Kent broke the ground with a silver shovel "Progress—I hate it." This statement might very likely come from one of our senior citizens, but is surprising coming from a 16-year-old boy — historian Bill Williams, to be exact.

Young Williams, who has researched and written several historical articles for Marin Magazine, has set for himself a prodigious job. He is building up a card file on every Marin resident before 1930.

"I expect it will take me about 15 years," he says philosophically.

Williams has one handicap - his age.

"I do pretty well over the telephone," he says, but when I turn up in person to look at some old pictures or something, they start giving me the run-around. I had to talk for half an hour before I convinced one man I really was doing a story for the I-J. He still didn't really believe me until I showed up with Ken Molino, the photographer."

While other boys spend their money on hot rods, Williams spends his buying rare old photos. He's particularly interested in railroads.

He has won the respect of several fellow historians. But strangers, that's another matter.

The third and last concert of this season will be presented by the Marin Symphony Guild at Marin Catholic High School on May 8 with a preview lunch on May 6. It features a vocal and an instrumental soloist.

Gwen Curatilo, the young and outstanding mezzo-so-prano from San Rafael will sing arias from "Don Giovanni" by Mozart and from Othello" by Verdi. Ann van Wyck will appear as soloist in Darius Milhaud's famous "Con-

The concert will begin with Mendelssohn's beautiful and melodious "Italian Symphony" (Nr. 4) and it will end with a not less charming composition, the overture-fantasy "Romeo and Juliet" by Tschaikovsky.

SYMPHONY SOLOIST

Gwen Curatilo–Fragile Elf With Endurance Of A Derrick

By BARBARA ATKISSON

Gwen Curatilo is an elfin beauty with a fine lyric soprano voice, a generous laugh, and the endurance of a steel derrick.

Her schedule of singing engagements for this month of May would "do in" a seasoned opera star, but Gwen, being 26 (she looks barely 19) and determined, will somehow manage to dash from opera performance to concert to audition to recital, and still see to the care and feeding of her husband Joe (music director of the Dixie school district), their four-year-old daughter Jan, and keep house at 588 Wisteria Way, Terra Linda.

On May 7 Gwen will sing in the San Francisco musical club's production of "Louise" at the Marin Memorial Auditorium.

May 8 she will be guest soloist of the Symphony Guild of Marin Orchestra when that accomplished or ganization plays in concert at the Marin Catholic High School auditorium. Under the baton of permanent conductor Sandor Salgo, Gwen will sing three arias: Donna Anna's "Non Mi Mir" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," Desdemonas "Ava Maria' from Verdi's "Otello," and Lucia's "Regnava nel Silenzo" from Donizetti's "Lucia de Lammermoor."

May 14 through 16 Gwen will sing Eurydice in the English premier of Darius Milhaud's opera "The Sorros of Orpheus." The opera will be performed at Alfred Hertz Hall on the University of California campus.

Between now and then Gwen will take part in one or more auditions. The San Francisco Opera Debut auditions she will face with comparative calm since she is last year's San Francisco regional winner.

Meantime she'll be practicing for her own recital at the University of Santa Clara on May 24.

On this and other important occasions Gwen will be accompanied by San Francisco's Mme. Stephanie Shehatovich—"She's the finest accompanist in the Bay Area, absolutely wonderful," according to Gwen.

Another "absolutely wonderful" artist, according to Gwen, is her teacher, the eminent Dr. Guilio Silva of Novato, who is a member of the teaching staff of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

Dr. Silva is a noted composer (his cantata "The Hound of Heaven" was performed at Dominican College on Palm Sunday this year), a writer of books on voice and—of all things—cooking, an authority on the gregorian chant, and, in the words of his doting pupil, "a very great man."

What with her crowded calendar, and daughter Jan's having had a nasty cold, Gwen has had to give up teaching piano to 25 children and adults—temporarily.

She began as a pianist and didn't know she could sing until her sophomore year in an Illinois high school. That was the year she got a job in order to earn the down payment on a piano.

After high school Gwen attended night classes at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago and won a scholarship to the school of music of the University of Illinois. Her musical theory teacher was a graduate student named Joseph Curatilo.

And so they were married and moved to Marin.

Since Jan was born four years ago Gwen has studied and sung continuously: with the Mill Valley Light Opera Company, at the Bocce Hall in San Francisco, at every kind of club meeting and over the kitchen sink.

Now she seems destined for the operatic stage.

The rest remains to be heard.

CALIFORNIA WOODPECK-ER - The California Woodpecker, 81/2 to 10 in. long, is an abundant resident in areas with many oak trees, for 50% of its food is acorns. It has the strange habit of storing endless quantities of acorns, boring holes in tree trunks, fence posts, or telephone poles and stuffing the holes with acorns — far more than could ever be eaten. It catches some insects on the wing, but does not drill for food. This Woodpecker is strikingly colored, the top and back of its head being red; lower throat tinged with yellow; upper throat, sides of head, breast, back, tail, and wings black; forehead, rump, wing patches, and under parts white. It builds a nest in a hole in a tree, raising 1 brood of 4 or 5. Its calls are noisy — "Kerack! Kerack!" "Jacob, Jacob, Jacob!" Several birds are usually seen together, often on bare tree tops or telephone poles, or sharing in acorn storing and guarding. (From Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyrighted by M. F. Austin)

HOPE FOR THE BEST

Grapes Do Grow In Marin-But Choose The Right Kind

Success in growing grapes is more a matter of where you live than how you do it. In warm interior valleys you can do everything wrong and still get fruit. In a coastal fog belt you do it right and seldom get anything for your labors.

The person who simply must have grapes in a nongrape-growing area should plant a white American variety such as Seneca or Golden Muscat and hope for the best. The California Association of Nurserymen suggests trellising vines against a warm south wall to trap every bit of heat possible. If you don't get fruit you at least get a nice vine for your effort.

In the Coastal Valleys of both Southern and Northern California the choice of variety is wider and chances of success are almost always good. Here again, choose the sunniest spot in your garden. All the American varieties, including Concord and Pierce, are well suited to these areas. And most of the European varieties can be grown.

For best success, choose the earlier ripening Europeans such as Delight, a delightful seedless grape with the muscat flavor, Perlette, Cardinal, Ribier or Malaga.

Grapes are inexpensive, es-

Even Portable Barbecues Are Coming Out In Pastel

As 1959 overtakes us and Americans find themselves with more leisure time on their hands, more and more people are turning to outdoor recreation.

And big news in 1959 for outdoor hobbyists is color: light colors, bright colors. pastel colors.

Typical of items that are appearing in color in 1959 are a new line of barbecue sets and barbecue wagons recently put on the market by Montgomery Ward & Co. Portable barbecue sets have traditionally had black bowls. This was in deference to the heat generated by the burning charcoal and black has generally come to be expected on portable barbecues.

Wards new barbecue sets have made a revolutionary departure from the drab black and this year have bowls paint ed in various pastel shades. The new process marks an exciting change. The new colors are specially treated to last for years. Other new features include stainless steel hoods, warming ovens, all chrome legs and new split level grills that cook meats to varying degrees of taste at the same time and which later can be detached at the center for easier washing.

EAST INDIA CORNER-Mrs. Bert Rabinowitz of San Anselmo relaxes in her favorite corner, a setting created by Delcina Baer, member of the American Institute of Decorators. Miss Baer will feature similar items of decor in her booth at the forthcoming Decorators Big Show, to be held May 9 to 17. Both formal and casual interiors will be shown. The show is a student benefit for young people studying design at colleges in Northern California. Tickets will be sold at the door: adults, $1.65; Students, 65 cents.

Imagination Plus Plastics Create Summer Furniture

New and more attractive materials, imaginative color treatments and correlated groupings are making the news in summer and casual furniture this year. The new furniture is just starting to reach stores and will go on display this month, according to manufacturers.

Among the outstanding new materials is a luminescent plastic fabric that retains its sparkle despite exposure to sun and rain.

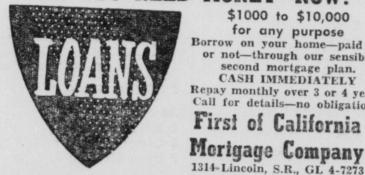

Used as webbing on aluminum-frame furniture, this material won't sag or stretch but provides comfort for even the heaviest persons.

Another is a Saran puff which has a quilted appearance. This is the material used on a leasure lounger group of sling-tpye chairs which won the National Association of Summer Furniture Manufacturers' "Apollo" award.

COLOR TREATMENTS run from highly polished aluminum to eye-appealing "Lustracolor," a plastic finish which is applied electrostatically and then sealed to the aluminum frame by a chemical process. The resultant finish won't fade, stain, chip or peel.

Steel furniture this year also has been given an improved color treatment with the finishes baked on for durability.

Nearly all pieces this year, according to designers, are styled to go with other pieces in groupings.

Weekly TV Log

IN GENERAL, it's difficult for a viewer to find any difference between next season and and 11 p.m. are pretty well this season. Some 13 hours of westerns will be on the three networks during the seven evenings of each week. Mysteries will be second with about 12 hours. Variety shows will occupy about nine hours, situation comedies seven hours, adventures four. Quiz and panel shows, which two years ago were occupying about 16 hours, are down to seven hours a week.

Regular weekly drama programs thus far scheduled total five hours and that includes calling "77 Sunset Strip" on ABC-TV a "drama program," The total amount of drama visible will be raised, however, by special programs, the monthly "DuPont Show of the Month" on CBS-TV, and five "Hallmark Hall of Fame" productions on NBC-TV.

"PLAYHOUSE 90" will be seen only every other week over CBS-TV, with a new 90minute program. "Biography," alternating. On Sunday evenings, ABC-TV starts off, as at present, with "Maverick" and rides the western ranges until a new adventure, "The Alaskans," comes on at 9:30. The CBS-TV Sunday evening schedule looks much the same, except that Jack Benny moves to 10 p.m., alternating each week with George Gobel, a transfer from NBC. With Steve Allen abandoning his long-time Sunday spot for 10 p.m. on Mondays, NBC-TV will launch a new show,

"Comedy Hour." UNDER PRESENT plans the biggest Western night will be Tuesdays, with seven visible, including two new ones. Transferring Perry Como from Saturday evenings to his new "Kraft Music Hall" program Wednesday at 9, NBC-TV is placing a slew of popular programs back-to-back: "Wagon Train," "The Price is Right," Como, "This is Your Life," and the Loretta Young CBS-TV appears intent on playing space for all its worth with two adventures tentatively entitled "Space" and "Destination Space." Independent program packagers will continue to do a great deal of production for the networks. Five independents alone are producing 31 series .

DRAMATIC LINE—The sloping roof makes for a pleasing exterior to this three-level split arrangement. Living room

A House To Span The Years

House-Of-The-Week Features Flexibility Of Floor Plan And Privacy All Around

By JOHN O. B. WALLACE

A span-of-the-years house, this three-level split will adapt itself to the changing needs of a growing family.

Designated X-12 in the House of The Week series, it will prove itself through the years as a home for newlyweds, parents and grand-parents.

The basic house, to be finished at the time of construction, consists of a living room, dining alcove, kitchen with breakfast area, bath, closets and a bedroom — all on an entrance level.

To be finished at the option of the owners, there is a bedroom area above on two levels. This area is in an alternate position, from front to rear instead of the lower level's side to side position.

The bedroom area has space at one end for four medium sized-bedrooms or a lesser number of larger bedrooms, and one or more baths.

At the other end of this area there is space for a children's playroom, or an additional bedroom or guest room, and a large storage room.

The entire house, surprisingly, is only 44 by 45 feet in its dimensions and would fit a 60 x 100 foot lot. The plan includes a two-car garage and a basement.

From the drawing board of Edward J. Baar, a Seattle architect, design X-12 has the latest kitchen design:

The appliances are arranged in the shape of an "L" for work ease and efficiency. The breakfast area is located in a free corner of the kitchen, and there is a wall-to-wall window for supervision of the rear terrace.

The kitchen and the dining alcove are joined by sliding Shoji screens, and sliding glass doors join the rear terrace with the living room and dining alcove.

The living room has a wide fireplace with a slate hearth and a cement block wall. Magazine and book cabinets are built under a corner window in the living room — and one wall of the living room is of wood to provide textural contrast.

The living room flows into the entrance foyer. The problem of cross traffic is elimated by the central entranceway which joins the livingdining areas with the kitchen bedroom - bath areas.

The dining alcove, however, is shielded from the entranceway by a low coat closet, a book shelf and a games cabinet.

Stairs to the upper bedrooms and down to the basement are off the entrance-way. There is direct access to the garage from the entranceway.

For the first child, the entrance level bedroom could be used as day nursery. As the family grows, separate bedrooms upstairs can be added—and the space over the lower bedroom and kitchen could be finished for play and hobby rooms.

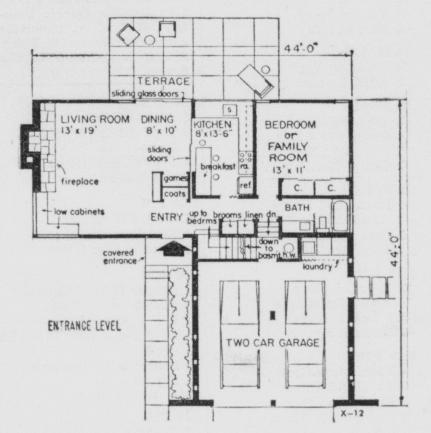

Recreation space is included in the basement plan along with shop and storage space. Every inch of space is put to work by the architect and there is abundant closet and storage space.

An interesting innovation has been introduced in the garage. Here the architect has called for the cement block walls to be inset with glass blocks. These add to the exterior appearance and provide natural illumination for the garage.

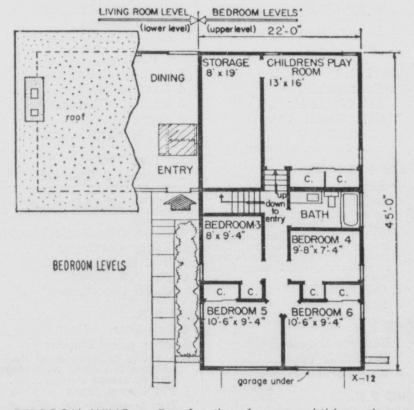

Exterior details include a built-up roof with colored, chip surface. The roof is supported by laminated and glued girders.

As an exterior design accent, channel type siding or boards and battens may be used with cement asbestos board under the windows.

All exterior walls and ceilings are fully insulated for savings in heating and cooling throughout the year.

LIVING UNIT — All on one level are living and dining rooms, kitchen and generous bedroom or family room. Garage is located slightly lower.

BEDROOM WING — For family of many children there are four compact bedrooms and generous playroom on slightly higher level. Note big storage room.

X-12

TERRACE VIEW — Mother's domain overlooks terrace, the better to keep an eye on small fry at play. Kitchen working areas and cabinets range along one wall and end of room; dining area occupies free corner. Sliding door (left) open on dining room.
